Mr. Lincoln's Book: Publishing the Lincoln Douglas Debates,
With a Survey of Known Signed Copies

It is a rare day when something novel is published about Abraham Lincoln's life and works. Yet 20,000 volumes later, Mr. Lincoln's Book is an unknown story.

As the Debates moved across Illinois, Lincoln saved the newspaper accounts of the contest. He pasted these columns into scrapbooks. This scrapbook (perhaps two—as a New York newspaper hinted at in 1860) eventually became the Political Debates Between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas In the Celebrated Campaign of 1858...

Lincoln, a popular politician and a man deeply thankful for the support of his friends and neighbors of Springfield and beyond, was happy to sign and gave copies of his copies of the book to his most ardent supporters. These became treasured mementoes to all who received them. The political best seller also helped carry the dejected debater of 1858, to the Executive Mansion a mere two years later.

This is the first survey of all known signed copies of this volume. The reader discovers, perhaps for the first time, all 42 copies. Many of the recipients' roles in Lincoln's life are documented, for the first time, in one book.

Here for the first time is a detailed narrative account focusing on Lincoln's personal involvement. Leroy unites the full story line with original correspondence, contemporary newspaper accounts, photos, and illustrations of the day.

Profusely illustrated with photos of many of the known inscriptions, the book details the publishing history of a book Lincoln so ardently wished to see printed—his only claim to his own book.

Also included is a CD with other correspondence leading to the publication.
