Marszalek, John F, with Louie P. Gallo & David S. Nolen, eds. THE MEMOIRS OF GENERAL WILLIAM TECUMSEH SHERMAN. THE COMPLETE ANNOTATED EDITION. Cambridge: The Belknap Press, 2025. 1st edition, 1,152p., photo, tables, d.j. A titan among Civil War military geniuses gives an unvarnished account of his career, presented for the first time in a definitive annotated edition, marking the 150th anniversary of the original publication. This newly annotated volume, featuring an introduction by leading Civil War historian John F. Marszalek, presents Sherman's life and legacy for today's audience. Detailed notes shed light on his editorial process, while contextualizing individuals, places, and events that loomed large for nineteenth-century readers but have since become obscure. Reintroducing a classic work of American military history, this edition brings to life a remarkable figure whose leadership continues to be debated today. As new; d.j. Signed on Bookplate. $39.95

Cozzens, Peter. DEADWOOD: GOLD, GUNS, AND GREED IN THE AMERICAN WEST. NY: Knopf. 1st ed., 432p., illus. Signed Bookplate. Deadwood is the first book to tell the story of how one frontier town came to embody the best and worst of the West. Sifting through myth and legend—from nineteenth-century dime novels like Deadwood Dick, to HBO prestige dramas to the casino billboards outside of present-day Deadwood—Cozzens unveils the true face of Deadwood, South Dakota; the storied mining town that sprang up in early 1876 and came raining down in ashes only three years later, destined to become food for the imagination and a nostalgic landmark that now brings in more than two and a half million visitors each year. That Western romance, though, was built on the town's foundational sins. Built on land brazenly stolen from the Lakotas, Deadwood was not merely a place where outlaws lurked, but was itself an outlaw enterprise, not part of U.S. laws or governance. This gave rise to the gunslinging, stagecoach robbing, whiskey guzzling, rampant prostitution, and gambling Deadwood is known for. But it also bred a self-reliance and a spirit of cooperation unique on the frontier

Ellsworth, Scott. MIDNIGHT ON THE POTOMAC: THE LAST YEAR OF THE CIVIL WAR, THE LINCOLN ASSASSINATION, AND THE REBIRTH OF AMERICA. New York: Dutton, 2025. 1st ed., 356p. Later Ed, Signed on Bookplate. Told with a page-turning pace, bestselling author and historian Ellsworth focuses on the last, desperate months of the war, when the outcome was far from certain. It is a story of titanic battles, political upheaval, and the long-forgotten Confederate terror war against the loyal citizens of the North, deeply researched and captivatingly written. You'll read about the Confederate attempt to burn down New York City, how Lincoln almost lost the presidency, about the Rebel general who nearly captured Washington, and how thousands of enslaved African Americans freed themselves—and helped secure their nation's survival. This is an eloquent and gripping testament to the courage, grit, and greatness of the American people. As New. $32.00

Kreitner, Richard. Fear NO PHARAOH: AMERICAN JEWS, THE CIVIL WAR, AND THE FIGHT TO END SLAVERY. NY: Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 2025. 1st, 416p. Signed on bookplate. Journalist and historian Richard Kreitner shares the intertwined stories of six American Jews who helped to shape a tumultuous time, including: Judah Benjamin, the brilliant lawyer who became Jefferson Davis's trusted confidante; Morris Raphall, a Swedish-born rabbi who defended slavery as biblically justified; and Raphall's rivals—the celebrated Isaac Mayer Wise, who urged Jews to stay out of the slavery controversy to avoid attracting attention, and David Einhorn, whose fiery sermons condemning bondage led to a pro-slavery mob threatening his life. We also meet August Bondi, a veteran of Europe's 1848 revolutions, who fought with John Brown in "Bleeding Kansas" and later in the Union Army, and the Polish émigré Ernestine Rose, a feminist, atheist, and abolitionist who championed "emancipation of all kinds." As he tracks these characters, Kreitner illuminates the shifting dynamics of Jewish life —and the debates about religion, morality, and politics that endure to this day. As New; d.j. $32.00

Powell, David A. THE ATLANTA CAMPAIGN VOLUME 2: FROM THE ETOWAH RIVER TO KENNESAW MOUNTAIN, MAY 20 TO JUNE 27, 1864. Savas Beatie, 2025.

1st, dj., illus., maps. Signed directly. The scope, drama, and importance of the Atlanta Campaign was on a par with Ulysses S. Grant’s Overland Campaign in Virginia, yet the operations in North Georgia have lingered in the shadows. Powell’s first of five installments treated the opening phase of the campaign—weeks of maneuver and several days of heavy fighting at Resaca, after which the Confederates slipped out of Sherman’s traps and escaped across the Oostanaula and Etowah rivers. This second volume marches with the armies and their leaders deeper into Georgia. Sherman opened the second phase of the campaign on May 23, by throwing his army across the Etowah River. The next five weeks were by some measures the hardest of the entire summer as maneuvering gave way to trench warfare, first along the New Hope Line, then Pine and Lost mountains, and finally atop the imposing slopes of Kennesaw Mountain. Sherman remained undaunted. Atlanta was a mere dozen miles distant. This multivolume study is based heavily on hundreds of primary accounts, 21 original maps, a firm understanding of the terrain, and a keen grasp of military strategy and tactics. Now the definitive treatment of one of the most important and fascinating confrontations of the entire Civil War, that will stand the test of time. As New. $39.95

Sinha, Manisha. THE RISE AND FALL OF THE SECOND AMERICAN REPUBLIC. NY: Liveright, 2024. 1st ed., 562p., illus, d.j., notes, index. Signed on bookplate.

Acclaimed historian Manisha Sinha expands our view beyond the accepted temporal and spatial bounds of Reconstruction, which is customarily said to have begun in 1865, and to have come to a close when the “corrupt bargain” of 1877 put Rutherford B. Hayes in the White House in exchange for the fall of the last southern Reconstruction state governments. original account opens in 1860 with the election of Lincoln that triggered the secession of the Deep South states, and take us up to 1920 and the ratification of the Nineteenth Amendment, which granted women the right to vote. Within this grand frame, Sinha narrates the rise and fall of what she calls the “Second American Republic.” The Reconstruction of the South, a process driven by the alliance between the formerly enslaved at the grassroots and Radical Republicans in Congress, is central to her story, but only part of it. The Rise and Fall of the Second American Republic shows how the great contest of that age is also the great contest of our age—and serves as a necessary reminder of how young and fragile our democracy truly is. [GRANT, Ulysses S.] [Page, Samuel D.] THE RIVERSIDE SOUVENIR. A MEMORIAL VOLUME ILLUSTRATING THE NATION'S TRIBUTE TO GENERAL U.S. GRANT. New York: J.C. Derby, 1886. Oblong folio (11 by 14 inches), binding of silk moiré w/ title label inserted on front board. First edition thus; w/ 40 folio lithographic plates of the funeral procession of General Grant to his tomb in Riverside Park in New York City. The “Wm. Boells Lith NY” company is printed on many prints. "On the eighth day of August, 1885, forty thousand men united in a procession to escort to its burial place the body of General Ulysses S. Grant, while a million spectators look on at the solemn and unparalleled obsequies. New York was thronged as never before. It was a Nation's tribute to honor the dead... It was a colossal and memorable demonstration, and it is fitting that the record of its magnitude and special features be preserved in a more enduring form than the columns of the press of the day... Instantaneous photographs were taken from a given point as the several regiments or other important elements of the procession passed into range, and these views have been faithfully transferred to stone for reproduction upon these pages."—from the 3-page introductory essay. [Hoover, Herbert Clark, translator (31st President)] C. Georgius Agricola. DE RE METALLICA. Translated from the First Latin Edition of 1556. With Biographical Introduction, Annotations and Appendices upon the Development of Mining Methods, Metallurgical Processes, Geology, Mineralogy & Mining Law from the earliest times to the 16th century. London; The Mining Magazine: 1912. 9"x13.5", xxxi + 637 pages; illustrated throughout with reproductions of the original woodcuts. Printed on linen paper and bound in full vellum in facsimile of the original. Future-President Herbert Hoover was first and last an engineer who specialized in mining, and he took both great pride in his profession as well as an acute interest in its history and antecedents. Accordingly, he was fascinated by Agricola's 1556 folio "De Re Metallica", which was, as he wrote in his autobiography, "the first important attempt to assemble systematically in print the world-knowledge on mining, metallurgy, and industrial chemistry. It was the great textbook of those industries for two centuries and had dominated thought and practice all that time." Hoover continues-"No one had ever succeeded in translating it into English, although several had tried... The problem of the

"untranslatable" Agricola fascinated us both and finally in 1907 we resolved to translate it jointly [Mrs. Hoover was an excellent Latinist]. There were formidable difficulties; for while Agricola's Latin was scholarly enough, he was dealing with subjects the whole nomenclature and practice of which had developed hundreds of years after the Latin language had ceased to grow. He did not adopt into the text the German, Italian or English terms for the operations or substances he described, but coined or adapted Latin terms for them... The job (of properly translating) involved finding...what he meant... Sometimes the task amounted more to scientific detective work than to translation.... Often enough, when we discovered the meaning of a term we found that there was no modern word to express it because that particular process had been long abandoned. In any event, we grappled with it sentence by sentence, during our spare time, month after month, for over five years...The production of the book itself was equally painstaking. In order to make the book as like the original as possible, (we) found a papermaker who could produce a sixteenth-century linen paper. He had a font of type cast in exact reproduction of the original except "f" for the ancient letter S, which is confusing to modern readers. He printed it as a folio volume with all the old prints and illustrations in astonishing fidelity to the original. (He) bound it in white vellum as the original was bound." But more than simply a translation and reproduction, Hoover also added his own knowledge to the book: "In addition to the translation, I wrote an introduction covering the times and circumstances under which Agricola lived and worked, with a brief biography of him. We included full statements of all the known editions. I prepared extensive footnotes describing previous processes so far as knowledge of them is preserved--including those in Roman and Greek times." Literate recollections of a young officer that served in the 5th New Hampshire, later commanded the 18th New Hampshire, and served with the U.S.C.T.'s before Richmond. Livermore was assigned to the staff of the II Corps at Gettysburg and had opportunity to ride about and witness much of the battle. Livermore wrote this work as a manuscript diary and refused its publication while alive to spare certain officers embarrassment at his blunt observations. His family included most of these in the published version, making Days and Events one of the most valuable firsthand reminiscences to come from the Army of the Potomac. Mays, Thomas D., ed. LET US MEET IN HEAVEN: THE CIVIL WAR LETTERS OF JAMES MICHAEL BARR, 5th SOUTH CAROLINA CAVALRY. Abilene: McWhiney, 2001. 1st ed., 279p., illus., maps. The most revealing and touching passages written during the Civil War are found in letters exchanged by loved ones. The letters of South Carolina cavalryman James Michael Barr to his wife Rebecca offer an excellent example. Barr enlisted as a private in the 5th South Carolina Cavalry Regiment in January 1863, just as the fortunes of war began to turn against the 5th. After serving for more than a year in its native state, the 5th South Carolina Cavalry was called to the killing fields of Virginia. All the while James Barr sent letters home. Through his vigorous correspondence, Barr participated in the operation of the family farm, supplied news from the front, and described his life as a soldier, including an account of the clash at Trevilian Station in which he was wounded. Part of the photographic series organized by state in the conflict. Given this specificity, each volume is able to delve into greater detail with photographic material, as well as present a more human side to those embroiled in battle. Nice narrative explicating the images, and the appendix contains multiple biographical sketches on key participants in the battles of Tennessee. The early history of the burgeoning industry, particularly in the Volunteer State, is traced as a partial explanation of the proclivity of photographs in this book. Near fine; dust jacket. $95.00

moving biography that reads like an epic historical novel, taking as its subject the extraordinary man who became the second president of the United States and whose adventurous life and spirited rivalry with Thomas Jefferson encompasses both the American Revolution and the birth of the young republic. Deftly and with a brilliant eye for detail, McCullough describes the childhood, youth, and coming of age of Adams, the fiercely driven Massachusetts farmer-lawyer whose marriage to Abigail is one of the great real-life love stories, and of his rival Jefferson, the Virginia planter and slaveowner. Through their lives, McCullough explores the extraordinary factors that transformed thirteen colonies into a united nation and that eventually brought these two distinctly dissimilar men to the presidency. Meacham, Jon. AND THERE WAS LIGHT: ABRAHAM LINCOLN AND THE AMERICAN STRUGGLE. NY: Random House, 2022. 1st ed., 1st printing, 676p., ft., illus. Chronicles the life of Abraham Lincoln, charting how—and why—he confronted secession and slavery and their threat to democracy. Traces Lincoln from his birth on the Kentucky frontier in 1809 to his leadership during the Civil War to his tragic assassination in 1865: his rise, his self-education, his loves, his bouts of depression, his political failures, his deepening faith, and his persistent conviction that slavery must end. In a nation shaped by the courage of the enslaved of the era and by the brave witness of Black Americans, Lincoln's story illustrates the ways and means of politics in a democracy, the roots and durability of racism, and the capacity of conscience to shape events. Nagel, Paul C. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS: A PUBLIC LIFE, AND PRIVATE LIFE. New York: Knopf, 1997. 1st ed., 432p., illus. Nagel probes deeply into the psyche of this cantankerous, misanthropic, erudite, hardworking son of a former president whose remarkable career spanned many offices: minister to Holland, Russia, and England, U.S. Senator, secretary of state, President of the United States, and finally, U.S. Representative (the only ex-President to serve in the House). On the basis of a thorough study of Adams' 70-year diary, among a host of other documents, the author gives us a richer account than we have yet had of JQA's life, and shows why, in the end, only Abraham Lincoln's death evoked a greater outpouring of national sorrow in 19th century America. Smith, Timothy B. A CHICKAMAUGA MEMORIAL: THE ESTABLISHMENT OF AMERICA'S FIRST NATIONAL MILITARY PARK. Knoxville: The University of Tennessee Press, 2009. 1st ed., 211p., illus., maps. Tells the story of how the country's first federally preserved national military park came into being and how it paved the way for all that came afterward, including preservation efforts today. The brainchild of Henry Van Ness Boynton, a Union officer and veteran, the park served multiple purposes as a commemorative memorial to the soldiers who had fought there as well as a military reservation for maneuver and study. The park played host to numerous military units during the Spanish American War as well as World Wars I & II. Perhaps the most important aspect was the creation of historical memory in both. Wittenberg, Eric J., ed., & Husby, Karla Jean, compiler. UNDER CUSTER'S COMMAND: THE CIVIL WAR JOURNAL OF JAMES HENRY AVERY. Washington: Brassey's, 2000. 1st ed., 185p., illus., maps. James Henry Avery, a twenty-four-year-old farmer from Hopkins, Michigan, enlisted in the Fifth Michigan Cavalry in August of 1862, and became one of General George Armstrong Custer's feared "Wolverines", serving in a unit that fought with great distinction throughout the Civil War. These battlefield journals and postwar remembrances of Sergeant Avery offer detailed descriptions of Civil War cavalry movements and daily life in the Regiment. Avery describes his personal experiences in battles that include Gettysburg, The Wilderness, Yellow Tavern, Trevilian Station, and Cedar Creek. "Chronicling the hardship and glory of wartime service with George Custer's famed Michigan Brigade, Avery's ... narrative is an important contribution to our understanding of the Union cavalry's emergence as a potent agent of victory." - Brian C. It is also the story of his regiment, also known as Rush's Lancers, named both for the distinctive wooden lances they carried for the first two years of the war and for their first commanding officer, Col. Richard H. Rush. These letters provide rare insight into the workings and daily life of a non-commissioned officer in an elite Union cavalry unit. Smith describes the 6th's action in the Peninsula, Chancellorsville, Brandy Station, Gettysburg, and the Overland Campaign. Wesson, Ernest James. CAMPAIGN LIVES OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN 1860: An Annotated Bibliography of the Biographies of Abraham Lincoln Issued During the Campaign Year. IN: PAPERS In Illinois History....1937. Springfield: Ill. State Hist. Soc., 1938; pages 188-220, 4 illustrations. THE bibliography on the subject! "These drab (sic) little books played an important part in the election of Lincoln to the Presidency. It is to them that we must turn if we are to read the first published life of the greatest American." Through diligent research, Wesson arranged the citations in a chronological order still used today. His extensive background notes alone are worth the price of admission! Fine; bright, fresh, and clean. An Essential Lincoln Reference. $350.00
